OBJECTIVES

In this lesson, you will

- review sentence structure, parts of speech, and sentence agreements
- test your knowledge of the above language ideas

W1 - Lesson 5: Review

Sentence Structure

In W1 - Lesson 1, you learned that a sentence is a group of words that expresses a complete thought. A sentence that does not make a complete thought is called a sentence fragment. A complete sentence requires both a subject (the doer of the action) and a predicate (the action). A sentence fragment often lacks either a subject or a predicate.

Here is an example of a complete sentence with the simple subject underlined and the simple predicate double underlined.

The coach thought her team played very well.

Here is an example of a sentence fragment with the subject missing:

Practiced twice a week.

Subjects and predicates can be compound; that is, they may have two or more parts.

Examples: Basketball and soccer are my favourite sports.
(compound subject)

Mary Ann plays softball and sings in the choir.
(compound predicate)

A run-on sentence is actually a collection of two or more sentences without proper punctuation.

Example: Marco dribbled the ball he stopped he lost it to another player.

A run-on sentence can be corrected by using joining words or punctuation to separate the thoughts.

Example: Marco dribbled the ball, and then stopped. He lost it to another player.

A simple sentence has only one subject and one predicate.

Example: Jeannie canoes in the summer.

A compound sentence contains two simple sentences connected by a joining word.

Example: Jeannie canoes in the summer, but Joseph runs his sailboat.

Parts of Speech

In W1 - Lesson 3, you learned that parts of speech are the jobs that words do in sentences.

A noun names a person, place, thing, or idea. Nouns can be common or proper.

Examples of common nouns:

girl, home, radio, beauty

Examples of proper nouns:

Molly Johnson, Camrose, Canadian National Railway, Islam

A pronoun is a word that takes the place of a noun. You have studied personal and possessive pronouns.

Examples of personal pronouns:

I, me, you, he, him, she, her, we, us, they, them, it

Examples of possessive pronouns:

mine, your, yours, his, her, our, ours, their, its

A verb is a word that expresses action or a state of being. A verb is the main word of a predicate.

Examples of verbs that express physical or mental action:

throw, eat, ask, wonder, write, remember

Examples of verbs that express a state of being:

am, is, are, was, were, will be

An adverb is a word that describes a verb, adjective, or another adverb.

Examples:

1. an adverb describing a verb: Jenny dribbles quickly. (Quickly describes dribbles.)
2. an adverb describing an adjective: Your shot is too low. (Too describes low.)
3. an adverb describing another adverb: Martin very seldom gets a foul. (Very describes seldom.)

Sentence Agreements

In W1 - Lesson 4, you learned that subjects and verbs must agree, or match, in number. Singular subjects must have singular verbs, and plural subjects must have plural verbs.

Examples: All players try to do their best. (Try agrees with the plural subject players.)

The cheerleader packs her uniform. (Packs agrees with the singular subject cheerleader.)

Pronouns and their antecedents must also agree. An antecedent is a word or words that have been replaced by a pronoun. A pronoun and its antecedent must both be singular or plural. When an antecedent is male or female, the pronoun must be the correct gender.

Examples: Did Lola get her favourite uniform number? (Her agrees with the singular, female antecedent Lola.)

The players must wash their uniforms after each game or tournament. (Their agrees with the plural antecedent players.)
