W2 – Lesson 3: A Deadly Meeting

Reading 1: Cortés, the Conquistador

Hernán Cortés came from a wealthy family and had been trained in the ways of the military. Spain no longer fought the Moors, so he yearned for action. He was adventurous, ambitious, and young.

Cortés decided that his future lay in the Caribbean, where Spain was building colonies on the edge of the frontier.

Upon his arrival in Hispaniola, Cortés was given a large farm. Shortly after, he joined an expedition to conquer Cuba. He had become a conquistador!

Soon, stories came from the West of even larger lands and more powerful people than the Spanish had yet to encounter. With the stories came samples of riches only imagined by the Spanish.

The call to explore, and if need be to conquer, these new lands became too strong for Hernán Cortés to resist. To discover how Cortés was able to lead an expedition to the Yucatan, read pages 216 to 218 and pages 221 and 222 in your textbook, Worldviews: Contact and Change. Then complete Activity 1.

Activity 1: Cortés, the Conquistador

Reading 2: An Unequal Fight

Many nations produce brave and courageous warriors. They are skilled in the ways of warfare. Great nations have warriors who understand tactics and strategies of war. When two equal nations wage war against each other, the war can be long and costly to both sides. However, if one side has superior weapons and the knowledge to use them to its advantage, there is little doubt about the outcome of the conflict.

The Aztecs were the most powerful people in Mexico. Their warriors were brave, courageous, and very skillful in the use of powerful weapons. However, the Aztec warriors were not a match for the Spanish weapons.

To discover the types of weapons the Aztecs and the Spanish used and a weapon that even the Spanish were not aware they had, read pages 223 and 224, and 226 to 227 in your textbook, Worldview: Contact and Change. Then complete Activity 2.

Reading 3: Invasion

The Aztec emperor, Moctezuma, was worried. A few days earlier, he watched a fiery image cross the skies. It was a star serpent. As beautiful as the serpent looked, it still terrified him!

Now messages from the east brought news that was most disturbing. Strange men had arrived in ships as big as small mountains. They had strange four-legged animals that carried these strangers from place to place. When people approached these strangers, thunder would roar and some of his people would fall dead.

Was this Quetzalcoatl returning to destroy the Aztec Empire, or was this merely another enemy to be destroyed?

If it was Quetzalcoatl returning, there was not much the Aztecs could do. If this was another enemy, the Aztecs would fight. “What to do?” wondered Moctezuma.

To discover Moctezuma’s decision, read pages 229 to 233 in your textbook, Worldview: Contact and Change. Then complete Activity 3.
